DESCRIPTION

R&S addresses the various juridical and academic aspects of the relationship between law and science as well as their impacts on the research and innovation activities in the European, international and national legal systems, economies and societies.

The journal has a multidisciplinary and international aim, emphasizing the current problems and challenges that have emerged as a result of the scientific, investigative and innovation activities, paying especial attention to the rights, obligations and legal and ethics issues of said activities.

R&S provides a forum for discussing the juridical, legal and ethics issues of the research and innovation activities. Contributions may explore these topics at different levels and analyze the legal instruments to implement them, in particular the funding programs. Furthermore, the journal will be open to the insights concerning the relation between science and technology and other disciplines such as philosophy, ethics, economics, sociology, and history.

BENEFITS TO AUTHORS

The journal provides authors with an opportunity to publish their research in open access peer reviewed publication.

R&S offers the authors additional benefits such as free PDFs and a liberal copyright policy.

AUDIENCE

Jurists, political and social scientists, economists and those other researchers of natural and physical sciences interested in the subjects in which the journal is focused.

PUBLICATION FREQUENCY

R&S is going to be published once a year; however, special issues may be issued in order to address the emerging items related to the multiple aspects and purposes mentioned in the journal's description.

GUIDE FOR AUTHORS

The contributions must follow these initial submission rules:

- a) Manuscripts must be done in a single Word file and submitted within the dates published in the annual call for papers;
- b) Submission is electronic only;
- c) Manuscripts must not have been published previously; however, exceptions will be made for abstracts or components of an academic thesis;
- d) The contributions must be written in Standard English;
- e) All papers will be submitted to the arbitration process which will be conducted by the International Editorial Board;
- f) Upon acceptance, authors will be asked to adhere to the formatting requirements as requested.

PEER REVIEW PROCESS

Manuscripts are reviewed in an unbiased manner, receiving prompt attention by the R&S International Editorial Board.

After a preliminary assessment of the paper's suitability by the Editorial Board, each paper will follow a double-blinded peer review process. The goal of the Editorial Secretary is to provide the referees' reports, and the final decision will be taken by the International Editorial Board within ten weeks of submission.

The whole process will be handled by the International Editorial Board to whom all inquiries should be addressed.

In order to ensure full anonymity of the refereeing process, authors are asked to write papers in such a way as to keep their identity from referees. In particular, authors will refrain from citing forthcoming or ongoing papers and self-citation; however, references to these papers that are deemed necessary can be added in the final version, after acceptance. Also, referees are asked to provide reports concealing their own identities.

Preliminary selections might be carried out by the International Editorial Board to assess the consistency of the paper's content with the aims of the journal.

Authors will have the opportunity to review corrections before publication, provided the articles are submitted to the editors in a timely fashion.

PAPER SUBMISSION

Paper submission must be made to the following email account:
rightsandscience@juri-dileyc.com
